History of Hancock County, Illinois.

hy Henderson County, on the east by McDonough and part of Schuyler Counties, on the south by Adams County, while the Mississippi River washes its western houndary for a distance of about thirty miles. It is divided into twenty-four townships, sixteen of which are congressional. Haucock County was, at an early day, a portion of Pike County. The three counties of St. Clair, Gallatin, and Randolph were formed under the territorial administration of Gen. St. Clair. Their exact boundary lines are, at this day, difficult to determine, as the maps of that time are obsolete. These counties, or divisions were in practice till the 14th day of September, 1821, when the county of Madison was formed by Gov. Edwards. All the territory in Illinois north of a line drawn east from a point on the Mississippi just above Kahokia, was the domain of this county. From this territory came Bond County, and then Greene, Pike, and Sangamon, The original territorial counties were divided, Johnson from Randolph in 1812, Jackson from Randolph and Johnson in 1816, White from Gallatin in 1815, Franklin from 1814, Crawford from St. Clair in 1816, Washington in 1818. Clark from Crawford in 1819, Favette from Bond, Edwards, Crawford, and Clark in 1821. Following the divisions of Madison County, we find that Pike in 1821 contained all the counties now lying west of the Illiuois for its whole length, to the northern boundary of the State. nty in 1823, then Calhoun, Clay, Adams, Hancock. McDonongh, and Warren - all from Pike -in 1825. The early settlers of this county were men of energy and courage, and came mainly from the Middle and Southern States. They were men of rough manners, but generous impulses. There are very few of them living at present; but their names and the date of their coming to the county are mentioned sufficiently, and at length, in the township histories. They had to encounter the usual vicissitudes and hardships of the pioneers; and were brave participants in the early Indian wars; but there is no record extant that they were particularly assailed in the Black Hawk and Winnebago wars, the theater of the Indian est living settler of this county at present is, most probably, I. J. Waggoner, of Montebello Township, who came in 1824. Amzi Doolittle, of Appanoose, is the only survivor of the first jury. The following will explain the early organization of the county - its first officers, jury, both orand and petit, and will throw light on about who were the early and prominent settlers :

Quite a number of the Mormous had settled in Daviess County, and at an election in that county in the fall of 1838, a fight between them and the Gentiles occurred. When Smith heard of this, he raised a company at Far West and marched into Daviess County for the purpose. as he said, to quell the mob; but there was no mob there. The citizens were exasperated by this proceeding, and gathered in numbers to drive back the invaders. The Mormons were reinforced, and marching against the Gentiles, forced them to retreat. The word then went forth the Lord to the use of his saints. The Mormons had possession of the county for about a week, when the miliand others. The Governor of Missouri, thinking that peace could not be restored, ordered their expulsion from the State. They crossed the Mississippi at Quincy early in the year 1839, in a condition of great destitution. Their suffering touched the quick and generous sensibilities of the people of Illinois, who received them with kindness and a power to alleviate their sufferings. At this time they were joined by a Doctor Galland, a man of great shrewdness and mental acumen. He soon won the confidence of Smith, who immediately received a revelation that the town of Commerce, of which Galland was principal proprietor, situated at the head of the Des Moines Rapids, should be the place where Zion was to once more unfurl its banners. They immediately moved there, and initiated the building of a city. This site was one of the most beautiful and picturesque on the banks of the Mississippi, and the name was soon changed to Nauvoo, which, according to a revelation which Smith had geceived, was the Hebrew for "Beautiful City." It grew wonderfully; and with the county soon contained a population variously estimated from twenty-five thousand to thirty thousand

At this time pollutions became aware of the power of the peopher, and apprants for office in both pollitical parties vice with each other in attention to the leading spirits of the Moranous. From this time on, the feeling between the Mormons and Anti-Mormons, became more and more intense and bitter. First, versations lawsuits, in which there was more have than justice; and finally bettel, knersey, and murder. The city of Nauwo was besigged, the prophet, Smith, in jul at Cardange, killed. The Governor, Ford, called no for assistance by both parties, while mob law aggined supremetal. 1846 the Mormon began to depart for their present bome in Utah, and in a few montles had all left.
